SPACE ALIEN MEETS WITH NEWT GINGRICH!

2-HOUR SUMMIT WITH SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE WILL CHANGE THE WORLD!

Seven people burst into flames — at the same time!

SOLE SURVIVOR Yves Gigot watched in horror as his friends ignited one by one.

By KEVIN CREED / Correspondent

PARIS — Seven people at a lavish dinner party burned to death when one of them spontaneously burst into flames and the fire leapt to six others, igniting them one by one in a bizarre chain reaction!

Scientists are calling it the first case of its kind in history.

"Worldwide, there are about 30 incidents of human spontaneous combustion a year," said noted French physicist Dr. Jacques Millioni.

"But there's never been a case on record before in which the phenomenon has spread from one person to another."

Dr. Millioni is the world's leading expert on the uncanny episodes in which people mysteriously catch fire and burn from the inside out.

Yves Gigot, the only surviving member of the ill-fated party, witnessed the whole ghastly incident. He returned to the table after using the bathroom, just in time to see the first of the victims, Marie de Chalieure, go up in flames.

First case ever of a human spontaneous combustion CHAIN REACTION!

"Everyone was laughing, gathered around the table, having a wonderful time," says Gigot, 43. "There were no candles on the table, no source of heat or fire anywhere around, but when I was halfway across the dining room I saw smoke begin to pour from Marie's ears, nose and mouth.

"Her eyes got very wide and suddenly she just sort of exploded. Fire burst out from inside her body and began to consume her.

"I saw a thin streak of fire jump over and strike Georges Casanbon. It was as if a magnet somehow threw the flames across the table.

"The stream of flame seemed to trigger a reaction in Georges, and he too burst ablaze from some strange source inside."

Gigot watched in horror as the thin flashes of fire jumped from one person to the next at the table (according to him, all seven guests at the table — including Renee, Gigot's wife of nine years).

"As usual in these cases, nothing else was burned," said Dr. Millioni. "All the furniture survived the blaze, including the flammable polyester fabric on the chairs. Even the victims' clothes were untouched."

The suspected researcher said there have been cases in which more than one person have spontaneously combusted at the same time. One incident, involving a Belgian couple who perished while dining at a mall, made newspapers nationwide, including Weekly World News' Sept. 19, 1989 issue.

But Dr. Millioni said none of the other cases involved a chain reaction as this one did.

"I will continue to investigate this phenomenon until I get to the bottom of it," he said.

Most moms believe in spanking!

Many mothers don't give a hoot that so-called experts say spanking isn't the best way to discipline their kids. They tan their little hellions' hides when they need it.

An amazing 42 percent of 204 mothers surveyed in the January issue of the medical journal Pediatrics believe a good spanking is the best way to discipline their kids for dangerous misbehavior.

Child experts say spanking is bad, but mothers spank fairly frequently.

"They both believe in it and do it often," says Dr. Rebecca Socolar of the University of North Caro-

COOKED GOOSE — ALMOST!

By JACK ALEXANDER / Staff writer

TURLOCK, Calif. — Outraged animal lovers would like to get their hands on the heartless sicko who shot this pathetic, one-legged goose in the head with an 8-inch dart as it hobbled across a park here.

"I'd like to spend five minutes in a room alone with the scumbag who did this. Only one of us would walk out — and it wouldn't be the scumbag," said a burly pet owner.

One-legged bird survives 8-inch dart in the head!

The crippled goose is alive and as well as can be expected. Another fraction of an inch, though, and this goose would have been cooked — for good.

Cops believe a teenager with a crossbow that shoots darts is responsible for wounding the goose and for shooting a duck in the wing at popular Donnelly Park here.

Animal control director Maxine Gonzales and others tried to catch the wounded goose so they could remove the dart and treat the injury.

"But every time we got close to the female goose, a very protective male goose nudged her some more us and toward the lake at the park," Miss Gonzales explained.

"The goose disappeared from the park for a day and reappeared a few days later minus the dart.

"We suspect the same person who shot the goose came back and retrieved the dart so there would be no evidence."

Police animal control officers and the "pet police" who frequent the park are on the lookout for the sleazeball who uses ducks and geese for target practice.

"Maybe the weirdo's next shot will be at one of us," said an officer who frequents the park. "Anyone who would intentionally shoot a defenseless duck or goose is capable of anything."

If caught, the culprit could be charged with animal cruelty and sent to jail for three months.

DUCK! Unfortunately this fowl didn't move fast enough to avoid a crossbow dart through the head

WITCH-HUNTERS KILL HUNDREDS!

WITCHES HILL, S. Africa — More than 100 women have been killed in this country in the past year — for being witches!

The suspected sorcerers have been burned alive by friends and neighbors and sometimes by their own families in a terrifying witch-hunt that has sent thousands of frightened women running to the police for protection.

So worrisome is the wave of grisly deaths that authorities have set aside a special refuge called Witches Hill for women who fear they will be the next targets of witch-hunting mobs.

"The toll is frightening, but we believe only a tiny proportion has been reported," said local Police Col. Rohlahl Thomaswana.

Man at a bakery: "Inside me there's a thin person struggling to get out — but I eat him down with cookies."

YOU BE THE JUDGE

☐ MAKE HIM PAY!

I think the sicko who shot the crippled goose should be shot himself!

☐ LEAVE HIM ALONE!

It was not have been the right thing to do, but a goose is just a dumb animal that gets shot for sport all the time.

TUMOR MAN

NEWS readers send thousands of cards, letters and $$$ to man covered with grotesque blisters!

By ANN VICTORIA
Correspondent

CEBU CITY, Philippines — Bighearted Weekly World News readers brought a bright burst of sunshine into the life of a humble fisherman whose entire body is covered with grotesque tumors — by sending him more than 5,000 cards, letters and checks!

Grateful Serapio Lano was overcome with emotion as he received an avalanche of mail and $12,65 in a simple ceremony last week.

The presentation included gifts from the editors of the NEWS, but most of the contributions came from readers just like you whose hearts were touched by the moving story we ran on him last year.

Our article told how Serapio's optimism and faith helped him face a life that would devastate a less courageous person.

Serapio has suffered since childhood from a rare condition. His body is covered with thousands of ugly tumors — some of them as big as small watermelons.

Doctors don't know what is causing the bizarre growths, but Serapio has become an inspiration to the fellow residents of his small fishing village.

"God has blessed me in letting me live," he said.

"Every day is a gift. And I feel constant gratitude for the kindness my neighbors and friends have always shown me."

The NEWS offered readers the opportunity to send Serapio words of encouragement and support. Within days, our offices were flooded with letters, many of which included generous checks. We forwarded the mail to him along with two fine fishing nets and our own contribution.

"I have no words to express my appreciation," Serapio said as he accepted the gifts.

"I'm touched that people so far away in such an important country as America would care about a poor Philippine villager. I thank Weekly World News and its readers from the depths of my heart."

A close friend of Serapio says: "Although he never complains, I know he's had some problems recently that make working difficult.

"He's had to give up fishing. His family depends on him. Now his dreams have come true. The money will help him feed his family and the nets will allow him to continue to lead useful and productive by allowing him to keep working."

Once again, NEWS readers reveal themselves as the most loving and compassionate group of people on Letter arrives 76 years late!

DORAVILLE, Ga. — Housewife Kathy Kilgore was pleased as punch when she finally got a letter from her sister-in-law — 76 years after it was sent!

Incredibly, the post office only recently discovered the yellowed 1916 note, whose writer died in 1987. They tracked down Mrs. Kilgore and delivered it to her.

"I'm not really upset about it," she said of the tardy delivery.

"I think it's very commendable for the postmaster to take the time to send it on. But I wonder where the letter was all this time."

KIDS' CLUTTER TRIPS UP BURGLAR!

HAMILTON, N.J. — A bumbling burglar had to highball it out a window minutes after breaking into a house — because he made so much noise tripping over toys that he woke up the family that lived there!

The crook entered the house on the ground floor and stripped over one toy after another as he tried to pick his way between dozens of playthings scattered over the living room.

The owners of the suburban house were awakened by the noise and rushed downstairs, but the burglar had already escaped. "It looks like he wanted to get away in a hurry," said Det. Sgt. Chuck Stanley of the local police department. He said the man got only a wallet and $5 in cash.

CHANGE THE WAY YOU WALK!

By ROBERT DAVIDSON
Correspondent

People often like you or dislike you simply because of the way you walk, says a psychologist.

That's because walking is actually a form of body language that reveals information about your personality, said Dr. Sara Snodgrass.

"You send out signals whether you walk quickly or slowly, bounce along or shuffle your feet, swing your arms or keep them down at your sides," she declared.

Dr. Snodgrass and other researchers viewed people walking and videotaped them, from the shoulders down. The tapes were then shown to students.

"The results were remarkable," Dr. Snodgrass said. "Those who tended to walk slowly, shuffle their feet and keep their arms at their sides were most often perceived to be less friendly."

They were also viewed as unhappy, unlikable and lacking self-assurance.

Those who walked fast with swinging arms were seen as more friendly, happy and ambitious. Dr. Snodgrass concluded: "If you want to impress people, swing your arms as you walk and take long strides."

Broken toilets force airline passengers to 'hold it' — for 13 hours!

Passengers on a charter flight from Sao Paulo, Brazil, to Sydney, Australia, nearly burst at the seams — when they were forced to spend 13 agonizing hours in the air without using the rest room!

"We had just taken off when the attendant announced that the toilets were overflowing and no one would be allowed to use them," said furious businessman Angelo Neves. "It was scheduled as a nonstop flight, but the passengers all thought sure they'd land somewhere and put us on a plane with working rest rooms.

"But no matter how much we pleaded, they just kept going and going and going. When we finally landed, we were ready to take that plane apart — but we were all too busy rushing for the airport bathrooms to bother with him."

THE HULKST-HER!

By RICHARD BRUTER / Correspondent

A cute young gal in Florida is body-slamming the macho sport of high-school wrestling — by pinning guys to the mat!

Petsy Jamie Magner is only a sophomore at Jupiter High School but she's already set records — and made national headlines — by whipping two of her male opponents. Hulk "The Hulkster" Hogan better beware.

"My team has been really supportive of me," the self-voiced 15-year-old said. "And when everyone at school found out I'd pinned a guy they all came up and said, 'Way to go.'"

Kindhearted Jamie even admits she felt a little sorry for her opponents. "I knew he was going to feel bad about getting pinned by a girl, but after a while I stopped worrying," she said. "I'm just out there trying to do my best."

The losing boy's coach said the unlucky lad has learned to cope with the defeat.

"He took a lot of harassment about it around school but everyone on the team has stood behind him and it's really helped pull our team together," said Coach Harold Primeau of William T. Dwyer High School in Palm Beach Gardens.

Jamie followed up her first victory with a repeat performance and pinned a second male opponent to the mat.

"Wrestling is a rough sport," Jamie acknowledged, but she's gotten used to all the hands-on physical contact she has with guys.

"I used to be real self-conscious, always thinking about where the guy's hands and my hands were," she said. "But I've stopped worrying. It's just part of wrestling."

And busy Jamie doesn't have to worry about her boyfriend getting jealous when she's rolling on the mat with another fellow.

"With all my wrestling practice I don't really have time for a boyfriend," she said. "I'd rather just flirt around anyway."

"No, that doesn't bother me," she said. "I usually stay right around 118 pounds and I don't care who knows it."

WRESTLING CHAMP Jamie Magner shows her hands behind her head as another male opponent bites the dust.

If we could use the money political candidates spend on their campaigns, we would be able to cure a lot of the ills they complained about during those campaigns.

Trading with the enemy . . .

By EARL TURNER / Correspondent

Five drunk Serbian soldiers drove a $2.8 million Russian-built tank to a town held by enemy Bosnian Muslims — and traded it for three cases of plum wine!

The unidentified soldiers — a staff sergeant, a sergeant and three privates — have been arrested and are awaiting trial.

"Their behavior is nothing short of treason," fuming Serbian General Aziz Butovac said. "The tank they gave away has already been used against our forces."

The five soldiers were happy passed out drunk a few miles from where they traded away the tank.

Under heavy interrogation one soldier confessed to the entire episode.

He said the five soldiers went on two-day leave and spent the first day drinking and partying, until they ran out of booze and money.

"They came back to their base, stole the keys to one of the tanks and took off with it," Gen. Butovac said. "Then they made a beeline for the nearest Muslim town, waving a white flag of surrender.

"A Muslim infantry squad surrounded the tank, but when our soldiers emerged it was obvious they were unarmed and quite drunk.

"They said they just wanted to swap the tank for some homemade plum wine, the most highly sought alcohol in Bosnia.

"Their original plan evidently was to trade the tank for six cases of the wine but the Muslims bargained them down to just three cases."

All five soldiers could face the firing squad if convicted for the stupid stunt, said the Serbian general.

Intergalactic summit that will

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The space alien who made worldwide headlines by visiting George Bush, Bill Clinton and Ross Perot is reportedly meeting with Newt Gingrich!

Weekly World News has obtained a Secret Service photograph showing the new Speaker of the House, Sen. Bob Dole and other congressional leaders emerging from a two-hour meeting with the alien.

Gingrich declined to discuss the meeting but spokesman Tony Blankley described the talks as "very intense."

Blankley denied rumors the alien was seeking favorable action for extraterrestrials who have secretly colonized Earth, saying "I can assure you that an extraterrestrial that comes to this country from outer space would be eligible for welfare benefits of any kind."

Sen. Dole said: "I'm not at liberty to say what we discussed but I can say it was one of the most productive meetings with an extraterrestrial we've ever had."

Yet another Washington source said, "The alien and Mr. Gingrich discussed nearly every topic concerning the United States. They talked about world peace, economic issues and social concerns — but the primary issue was Gingrich's future plans.

"The Speaker has said many times in the past he isn't interested in being President but the alien apparently encouraged him to reconsider that decision. The alien indicated he strongly supports Gingrich's policies and would likely back him if he decided to run for President."

The alien endorsed Clinton in the Aug. 11, 1992, edition of the NEWS, hoping the Democratic candidate in victory. However, the alien has since met with conservative talk show bust Rush Limbaugh and expressed disappointment with Clinton's performance.

In the meeting with Limbaugh the alien reportedly said the leaders on his planet are looking for a new candidate to support in the next Presidential election.

"The alien said leaders on his planet closely follow activities on Earth and are particularly concerned with world peace," the source said. "He told Mr. Gingrich he is looking for a strong leader on Earth with whom his planet could work."

The alien's home planet is technologically more advanced than Earth. He has made an offer to share this technology with the United States and even took Clinton on a ride in a space ship, as reported in the Dec. 1, 1995, edition of the NEWS.

But in the past two years the alien has distanced himself from Clinton. And the meeting with Gingrich confirms the belief that the alien is looking for a new partner in the U.S. government.

One analyst said the Gingrich-alien meeting is a strong indication of the changing direction of the political future of the United States. "The alien's encounter with Gingrich is very revealing," says Perry Hogshead.

MEN — Drop attackers instantly, safely with new LIQUID BULLET®

20-FT. CIRCLE-OF-SAFETY
High-power stream defends you from safe distance

- Drops even demented and drugged attackers and animals
- Used by police and military
- Up to 80 times more effective than MACE®
- No after effects

Meh, these days, you need a defense weapon as much as women. Men are 3 times more likely to be victims of violent crime.

Forget women's protective sprays. Their dainty vapor is likely to blow in your own face. Sprays have short range. You must be dangerously close to your attacker to use them.

Safe around kids

You need a smart weapon. One that drops attackers from a safe distance. And can't harm kids when not in use. LIQUID-BULLET protects you in a 20-ft. Circle-of-Safety with a high-power chemical stream. Your attacker's skin feels on fire. He is blinded, fights for breath, gets dizzy and disoriented. He's helpless for 20 minutes, yet suffers no after effects.

More effective than MACE®, LIQUID-BULLET's new super-formula with pepper stops even demented, drugged or drunk attackers and vicious animals (like it cavorting). MACE can't. And only LIQUID-BULLET guarantees free lifetime refills.

Accurate even with poor aim

This is the formula police and military use. A safety catch keeps it safe until it's ready for use. Flip the catch and it stops attackers as well as any gun. There's no loading, no cocking, no noise.

No need for accuracy, either. LIQUID-BULLET's high-power chemical stream finds its target even with poor aim. Any direct contact brings on crippling effects. Yet it's harmless and legal. And its invisible dye marks your attacker for 48 hours.

Now, super LIQUID-BULLET attaches to your key ring, so it's always handy — easily hidden in your pocket or palm.

If you won't carry a gun, carry this. Throw away your wife's spray and give her new, super LIQUID-BULLET. It could save your life.

DATING BURNOUT?

Many men and women are so disillusioned with dating that they're suffering from "dating burnout," experts say.

"In time, dating becomes a burden for some people — they reach a point where they can no longer face another date," said psychoanalyst Dr. Herbert Prendenberger.

By LOU MARTIN
Correspondent

"They grew tired of always having to be 'up' for dates, trying to act charming and enthusiastic even when they're not in the mood.

"And they become weary of dressing up for each new date and worrying about their appearance. What's more, dating can be emotionally draining when an individual has to keep trying to draw out the other person. It takes a lot of energy to keep a conversation going.

"Dating burnout is a growing phenomenon. We're seeing more cases all the time."

Psychologist Dr. Gary Emery said: "While dating at first is exciting and interesting, it eventually becomes tedious and tiresome.

"Daters grow disillusioned at meeting one person after another who's boring, crass or controlled.

"They also grow weary of relating their life history to one new date after another.

"The psychological price they pay for dating eventually becomes too high — and dating burnout sets in."

To combat dating burnout, the experts suggest that before you go out on a date, you try to get to know the person — through a lengthy phone conversation, for example.

Be more selective in whom you date. Be sure you and your prospective date have something in common. Don't accept a date just so you'll have something to do.

Try going out for lunch or coffee together before accepting a night out.

And when you do go on a date, don't agree to do something you know you won't enjoy just because that's what your date wants to do.

AFRICAN FIRM FORCES TOP EXECS TO LIVE IN THE JUNGLE

. . . to turn them into tigers in business!

GAIN FACED South African business execs pictured just before changing into traditional tribal garb

By JOE BERGER

CAPE TOWN, South Africa — Bigshot business execs with this country's black-owned Scion Marketing Corp. spend 11 months a year parking briefcases and beepers — and one month a year deep in the sweltering jungle, toting spears and tracking wild animals!

There city slickers with their pink suits and silk ties suddenly find themselves fending off lions, rhinos and laughing hyenas, dancing around a campfire like wild-eyed savages — and eating only what they can kill or capture.

"We can't just go to their roots — whether they like it or not — so they must experience the rigors of the fact that they are descended from proud jungle warriors," said no-nonsense Scion president Edward Ugoda, himself the grandson of a tribal chieftain.

"The city with its smoke-stained offices and fast food restaurants makes them soft and out of touch with who they are and the principles on which they were founded. Only then can they become more productive."

But Jeffrey Scott, an assistant Dallas Cowboys coach who visited the Scion camp, said the brutal safari left him and some of his colleagues limping and sore.

Zip through housework the quick and easy way

Professional house cleaners do a super-fast job without spending huge amounts of money on supplies or wasting energy — and you can use their methods to save time, money and elbow grease, an expert says.

"You shouldn't have to spend more than three hours a week cleaning your house — but most people spend twice that," said Don Aslett, author of five books on cleaning, including "Is There Life After Housework?" Aslett offered these tips:

■ Buy three cleaning products found in concentrated form at janitorial supply houses — an all-purpose cleaning solution, a disinfectant cleaning solution and an alcohol based cleaner for glass surfaces. A gallon of all-purpose cleaner that costs about $8 will replace $100 worth of cleaners at other stores.

■ Also buy your cleaning equipment at a supply house, because you'll be getting professional grade supplies. Supplies include a cotton terry cleaning cloth, a muslin cloth for dusting wood, a lamb's-wool duster with a handle, cellulose sponges in various sizes, a two-layer nylon-cellulose scrubbing sponge, a window squeegee with a long handle, a dust mop, a sponge mop and a home floor scrubber.

Follow these cleaning tips for a fast, efficient job:

■ Washing Windows — Put just one drop of a dishwashing liquid (the more or pearl streak) into a bucket of water. Wet the window lightly with a clean sponge. Now wipe the dry rubber squeegee blade with a damp cloth. Place the squeegee at the top of the window and pull it horizontally, creasing a clean, dry strip.

Wipe off the blade. Now start in the dry area and stroke downward to the bottom of the window. Dry the blade after each stroke. Finish with a horizontal stroke across the bottom to remove pooled water. No rinsing needed.

■ Carpet Care — Clean every spill right away. For most [illegible]-based stains — foods, pens, blood — clean gently from the outside in with a weak solution of ammonia (or dishwashing liquid) and water. Oil-based stains like road tar can be treated by dabbing on paint thinner or gasoline. Wet with a clean, dry cloth.

■ Cleaning Floors — After sweeping or vacuuming, mop with your hand floor scrubber, using an all-purpose cleaner diluted according to label instructions. Let sit for a minute, then mop with fresh water.

SPEED through housework with Don Aslett's tips and you'll have more time to work out and look like Sandy Duncan Lee.

MAMAS' BOYS GROW UP TO BE GAY MEN!

I'm madder than a duck with tar in its tail feathers over a story making the rounds all over America.

Seems that some egghead psychologist at Northwestern University just completed a study showing that if little boys dress like girls, play with dolls, wear lipstick and cling to their mothers they've got a damn good chance of being gay when they grow up.

Well, surprise, surprise, surprise. In dinner I'll be spell to say on The Andy Griffith Show.

I'm not here to say that little boy, or anybody that he's completely wasting his time up as a girl and wants to be a girl changes me to be a guilty to be a gay man. I'm claiming researchers at Northwestern University

But what I am saying is that little boys don't grow up to be gay. I'm not saying the same thing for the last 15 years and would listen. And that's because

Women think men who smell good are extremely attractive — but smell is rarely a factor in a man's attraction to a woman, a fascinating new study shows.

University researchers also discovered that men find women with strong sex drives to be enticing, while women don't consider that as significant a trait in their own personalities.

In the study, 348 college students were given 36 personal characteristics and asked to rate the importance of each for themselves and the opposite sex.

Men ranked a mate's most important features as figure first, followed by face, muscle development and physical condition.

But women said a man's eyes are his most important feature, followed by his sense, figure, muscle development, physical condition and face.

Men ranked a woman's face as her most important feature, followed by her figure and buttocks. Legs and eyes tied for fourth.

Women thought a female's most important features were, in order, her face, her figure, her weight, her eyes and her legs. Other features women thought were important on a woman were legs, stomach and waist — all characteristics related to controlling their weight.

Men thought chest, biceps, waist and shoulder width — traits related to having upper body strength — were important in males.

Psychologist Dr. Stephen Priesty said the results show "men are concerned with having V-shaped upper bodies. But women are concerned with controlling the size and shape of their entire bodies."

TEDDY BEAR KEEPS VIGIL AT 8-YEAR-OLD LEUKEMIA VICTIM'S GRAVE

By SUSAN JIMISON

RALEIGH, N.C. — A furry brown teddy bear keeps a lonely vigil in a church cemetery here — watching over the small grave of Brandon Cressing.

'It was the one toy he wanted for Christmas,' says boy's mom

The little stuffed animal was put there by Brandon's loving family on Christmas Day. It's the teddy bear that Brandon wanted for Christmas but didn't live long enough to receive.

"He wanted that bear so badly that he died before the holidays," said the boy's mother, Betty, 36. "So we decided to give it to him anyway.

"We feel like it kind of keeps him company so he's not all alone. We know that he can't be alone in it, wherever he is."

The eight-year-old Brandon died of leukemia on December 26 after a long and courageous battle against the killer disease. The boy had been hoping to live until Christmas so he could spend a special day with his family. But his valiant heart stopped beating before he got to open his presents — and scrap his frail arms around the teddy bear he longed for.

Betty and her husband Fred gave their only child a touching funeral with favorite hymns and a crowd of grieving friends and relatives. But when it was over and they turned their backs on little Brandon's body in the cemetery, they found it was too much to bear.

"I kept thinking of him being in the cold ground without anyone around," says Betty. "I mean he was Brandon. He was such a loveable person and he would rave to be there without a friend.

"I talked to Fred about it and we suddenly thought of the teddy bear. We had it packed away, waiting for Christmas. It was still in the back of the closet."

The grieving parents took the stuffed toy out to the cemetery and placed it by the boy's white marble tombstone.

"The minute we put the bear there, we knew it was the right thing to do," recalls Betty. "It was a comfort to us, just as we felt it was a comfort to Brandon.

"Now when we visit our son's grave it's really a reassuring thing to see his little toy sitting there. Brandon trusted

Six years after living different in jungle

BABOON BOY DAZZLES SCIENTISTS!

By KEVIN CRILLO Correspondent

KAMPALA, Uganda — A boy who was raised by baboons has finally begun to adjust to human society — almost six years after being taken from the wilds and brought to civilization!

And now Bobby, the amazing "wild boy of Kampala," is equally at home in both the jungle and the city.

"We never gave up on him," said Dr. Carnegie Keller, the determined psychiatrist who tried for years to rehabilitate the child.

"And at last our persistence has paid off."

Young Bobby, whom he believes to be 13 years old, has learned to speak English and a few words of Swahili. He can dress himself and eat with a knife and fork and even plays a decent game of checkers.

"But what's really remarkable is that he's lost none of his ability to communicate with baboons or exist in the jungle.

"He sometimes goes out into the bush for days at a time to visit his old friends. But he always comes back."

WELCOME Bobby will soon take the bush to visit his old friends.

Bobby's case came to light back in April of 1989 when newspapers worldwide reported that a human child of about 7 or 8 had been discovered by a group of hunters in the Ugandan bush.

Monkey World Keeper and vet Dr. Carnegie Keller examined the mutilated disembowelling of people — all of them adults — to teach the baboon raised boy to speak. He even believes in a civilized way.

"We tried placing him in an orphanage at first, hoping he would adjust," said Dr. Keller. "But he was just too wild. In his own mind, he was a baboon. And baboons are very violent animals.

"He kept tearing up the mattress and chewing on the rug. He even attacked some of the other children and had to be locked up. He was very strong — as well as the variety of others he was finally placed in a zoo."

But Dr. Keller and his colleagues continued to visit the boy daily. Eventually they began to win the boy's confidence.

Gradually, the wary look in the eyes of the cage as began to be replaced by a warm, loving glow.

"The breakthrough came just this January when he began reading to him from the works of Dr. Seuss, the famous rhyme writer of children's books. For some reason he seemed particularly responsive to 'The Cat in the Hat' and 'Green Eggs and Ham.'

Dr. Keller says the key to making incredible but progress.

"We have every reason to believe Bobby will soon be taught to at least as much as we're teaching him," says Dr. Keller.

"We've been following him in the bush and videotaping his conversations with baboons. We're looking forward to a day when little Bobby will share us valuable secrets that will reveal the mystery of human-animal communication."

NOW 13-YEAR-OLD BOY:

- ✓ Speaks English & Swahili!
- ✓ Plays checkers!
- ✓ Holds the secrets that will crack human-animal communication!
- ✓ Still visits with his furry friends!

Dear Fainting in Gutenberg: Ask your dandruff soap what to do.

Dear Sick in Kingston: A one-man band tuba? You're sick!

Dear Lorraine in Stockton: When you do "it" in a single-wide, the whole damn UNIVERSE ought to shake!

Dear Undecided in Brevard: Bullwhips make great conversation pieces and they're fun to master, but they're not what I'd call the ideal gift to take to a baby shower!

Dear Poor in Logan: If you're half as hungry as you say you are, get rid of the table — and that other thing in bed!

Dear Lonely in Kihei: Deal with it.

Dear Ginger in Cambridge: I don't care if it was 24 years ago — you still owe it to me!

Dear Dumb Bunny in Aloha: The next time the Grand Jury quizzes you, behave. Hold your tongue!

Dear Dotti: My Siamese twin sister and I are joined at the chest and surgeons can't separate us without killing her. Up until now, we got along fine.

Things changed when I met a wonderful man who asked me to marry him. I would walk down the aisle with my Prince Charming in a minute but my sister is jealous and refuses to go along. What am I going to do? — Stuck in Minneapolis

Dear Stuck: First you say your sister can't live without you and then say she won't let you get married. Get with the program, kiddo. You're calling the shots in this scenario — don't you EVER forget it!

Genius son wants to be a garbageman!

Dear Dotti: My 21-year-old son will graduate from Harvard with a degree in economics this spring but he has no more ambition than the man in the moon. He's got a genius I.Q. of 160. He's set to graduate with honors. But the only thing he has on his mind is getting out of school and going to work with the local sanitation department — as a garbageman. I get sick to the stomach just thinking about it. Dotti, what am I going to do? — Frantic Mom in Dallas

Dear Frantic: Be grateful you've got a son who understands the value of honest work. Too many college graduates — especially the smart ones — think the world owes them a living. And they're the ones who wind up standing in the unemployment line at the age of 30, wondering why nobody will love them!

Hubby won't put the toilet seat down after he's done!

Dear Dotti: My stupid husband is the world's worst when it comes to putting down the toilet seat after he uses the john. When nature called me the other night, I plopped myself down without checking the position of the seat and went straight down into the bowl. I'm furious, Dotti. How can I get both of my husband and teach him a lesson once and for all? — Perturbed in Truckee

Dear Perturbed: The next time your husband enters the bathroom, cover the top of the toilet bowl with clear plastic wrap. When nature calls, he'll get a splashing he'll NEVER forget — I personally guarantee it!

Should I try to have another baby at age 71, Dotti?

Dear Dotti: I'm 71 and have been married to a younger man — he's 41 — for seven years. We have two children that I gave birth to in my early 50s. Now we are thinking about having another one but because of my age, we're not sure we can. Do you think we should try to have another child or leave well enough alone? — Thinking in Boston

Dear Thinking: Don't be senile enough to bring a child at the age of 71 is not only dangerous, it's insane!

Not only are you smart — you're gorgeous, too!

Dear Dotti: In a recent column, you said that when the Good Lord gave out brains, he gave you a few extra helpings. Well I'd like to add to that and say that he didn't cheat you in the looks department, either! You're the greatest! — Bruce in Pasadena

Is my boyfriend involved with the Mafia?

Dear Serena: I've been dating the same guy for more than a year now and we've even talked about getting engaged. But I'm worried that he's involved in the Mafia.

I don't have any proof of it but he's very secretive about his work and usually gets very upset when I ask him about it. And all his friends that I've ever met are real shady characters and I'm pretty certain they're gangsters. Serena, I've seen all the Godfather movies and I don't want to be involved in a life like that. Please tell me — is my boyfriend involved with the Mafia? — Scared in Boston

'SPACE ALIEN
MY HUBBY I

TULSA, Okla. — Housewife Alice Drummond, 32, says she and her husband Frank were attacked and mugged by space aliens — who turned her husband into a cockroach!

The distraught young wife says the extraterrestrials assaulted Frank on the street and turned him into a bug when he refused to give up his wallet.

"I tried to call in a complaint on 911 but they kept hanging up on me like I was a prankster," says Alice, who insists the roach she keeps in a mayonnaise jar is actually her husband.

"Frankly, I'm afraid to pursue it because I'm worried they're going to think I'm crazy and put me away. Then who's going to take care of Frank?" Alice says she contacted Weekly World News because she believes a story about her bizarre experience might help ease her plight.

By Lisa Miraklis

She's hoping other WEEKLY WORLD NEWS readers who may have been attacked by the same aliens going will be willing to contact her to share their experiences. Alice says the horrifying crime occurred around 10 p.m. on December 21 while she and Frank were shopping for Christmas presents.

The couple were on their way to a parking area where they'd left their car when they were accosted by four little green creatures.

"They just popped out of bushes and blocked our path," Alice recalled.

"They looked so strange, with big eyes and shiny leathery skin.

"We thought they were going to be friendly, but one of them pulled a gun and we knew we were in trouble.

"I gave them my purse right away, but Frank wouldn't cooperate. I begged him to

NASA secretly launched 6 children into

WASHINGTON — NASA rocketed six children into deep space late last summer on a kidnap mission that could result in criminal indictments against key figures in the space agency before the year is out!

That's the word from Justice Department sources who say NASA has been under investigation in connection with the alleged launch since a whistleblower stepped forward with the charges last October.

Details are sketchy. But informed sources say the kids were launched in August aboard a space shuttle and have been orbiting the earth ever since.

Alice says the space aliens jumped Frank and beat him. Then one bit his wallet and burst a slimy liquid down his throat.

The kids attackers ran off, she says, but it was too late for her husband. He began writhing in agony and started shrinking right before her eyes.

Within minutes the 34-year old liquor salesman had turned into a cockroach approximately two inches long.

Alice says she captured the bug and stashed it in her purse, then put it in a mayonnaise jar when she got home. "I think I'm crazy, but I know that boy is Frank and I feel strongly that something ought to be done to help him," Alice said. "That's why it's so important to me that people who have had this happen to them get in touch with me."

"I feel like I can't do anything on my own because nobody will believe me, but that together we can make people listen. Then maybe we can find these things and put them in jail where they belong ... and force them to tell us how to bring Frank back to normal."

Readers who want to share their personal alien encounters can write to Alice c/o Weekly World News, 600 S. East Coast Ave., Lantana, Fla. 33462.

AIDS PANIC GRIPS RICH & FAMOUS

By SUSAN JIMISON / Staff writer

LONDON — Cross-dressing docs Keith Watts and Vikram Advani pranced off to sex orgies when they weren't operating on their high-society patients — and caught AIDS!

Now thousands of former patients are terrified they may have gotten the deadly virus while they were under the perverted practitioners' care. And people all over England are warned they may be endangered by other homosexual health-care workers.

. . . because THESE fruitcakes are their doctors!

SHOCKING new clip shows Dr. Keith Watts, right, and the late Dr. Vikram Advani. The men spent their evenings at wild sex orgies.

"There are lots more doctors and dentists like us out there," said Dr. Watts, a gay surgeon who advocated a morals makeover and urged all doctors with AIDS to voluntarily stop practicing. "They may have it but don't take tests and they continue to practice.

"There must be regular screening because even if HIV-positive workers stop working they still could have infected someone unwittingly."

Dr. Watts, who is now quite ill, has outlived Dr. Advani — his former sweetheart — by more than a year. He admits that he and his late lover used to delight in dressing up in frilly frocks.

In their sexy outfits, they'd go to steamy sex orgies and cross-dressing bars and even dentistry to the elite social world of rich wealthy London patients. But it was filled with scores of male lovers. Their kinky extracurricular activities eventually gave them AIDS, but tragically the cross-dressing medics continued to practice their trade, performing procedures that could well have spread their deadly virus.

Dr. Watts eventually admitted to authorities that he had AIDS and was assigned to treat AIDS patients exclusively. But Dr. Advani practiced on patients until his death last year.

"I tried to get him to stop but he wouldn't listen — he didn't want to know," Dr. Watts said. "I suppose I should have told the authorities. But we were best friends and it would have been a real betrayal.

I don't think Vik was continuing to work for the money because he was rich. When you have AIDS you become selfish — you don't think of anyone else. But he was going out of his mind with worry that he would be caught."

Dr. Watts, who has a gay lover to keep him company as he dies, is tortured by the knowledge that he may have helped kill people he was supposed to be curing.

He's courageously trying to

When women are with men they find attractive, they eat much less than they do when they're with unattractive men or with other women, university researchers have just discovered.

"Even though women today have made tremendous advances in the world they still want certain characteristics in men, especially when they're with men they find attractive," explained top psychologist Dr. Shelly Chaiken.

"Traditionally, women who eat small portions of food are considered very attractive. So many women pick at their food in public even when they actually could be very hungry."

Dr. Chaiken based her conclusions on a study she conducted while she was teaching at a New York university.

She paired college students with either an attractive or unattractive partner in each room where the students were meeting for the first time. There was food available, containing a predetermined balance of snack food.

Students were told to help themselves to the snack. After they left, the amount remaining in the bowls was measured to determine how much was eaten.

"Women ate about twice as much food when they were with an unattractive male as they did when they were with an attractive male," Dr. Chaiken said.

When women were paired with women, they also ate more.

And ate less when they were with women than they did when they were with other men. But the difference in their consumption when they were with attractive women or unattractive women was "insignificant," Dr. Chaiken said. She concluded men eat less when they're with women "out of respect or good politeness."

SEEING-EYE DOG FLAGS DOWN CAR — TO SAVE STRICKEN OWNER'S LIFE!

By R. NEALE LIND Staff writer

WESTMINSTER, Colo. — A heroic seeing-eye dog went completely against his training, rushed out into traffic and flagged down a passing motorist to get help for his stricken owner!

Patch, a 5-year-old black Labrador retriever, was trained not to bark and never to leave his owner's side.

But when his beloved friend and owner, Mrs. Heather Seaver, suffered an epileptic seizure while waiting for a bus, the faithful dog threw all that training to the wind and acted on his instincts.

When Mrs. Seaver fell to the sidewalk, Patch jumped back and forth between the curb and gutter until he attracted the attention of passing motorist Virginia Sutton.

"She was barking at the cars," says Mrs. Sutton. "He was frantic. There was definitely something wrong."

When Mrs. Sutton pulled over and got out, Patch gently grabbed her sleeve in his teeth and led her over to Mrs. Seaver. Mrs. Sutton recognized a third driver who called paramedics.

GRATEFUL Heather Seaver and Patch share a loving embrace

VALIANT dog Patch steps out in traffic to check her vest before helping his owner, Heather Seaver, across the street.

Epileptic woman: If it wasn't for Patch's courage — I would have died!

"The amazing thing about all this is that Patch has never gone against his training before," said Mrs. Seaver who has owned Patch since 1991.

"The fact that he went into traffic shows me I have an understood there was something wrong with me that had nothing to do with my blindness.

"I think God gave him the insight to realize I needed help and he ran to get it for me.

"I could have fallen into the street, hit my head and been seriously injured or killed. It's very touching to me I know God was working through Patch.

"As soon as the ordeal was over and the ambulance was about to leave, Patch's training came back to him.

"He seemed to suddenly realize we were in traffic and tried to lead me out of it."

The city of Westminster gave Patch a medal for his bravery.

"I'm really proud of his courage," says Mrs. Seaver.

"And the paramedics deserve a lot of credit, too. They were great."

GAY PETS STAR ON WACKY NEW TV SHOW

...but U.S. networks are afraid to put it on the air!

FAIRY TALE was wagging over a crazy new Australian television show that features goofy pets such as this sissy parrot that often wears an ascot and speaks with a lisp.

By SHAWN HARRIS

A new show that features the swishy lifestyles of sissy pets acting just like their gay owners is the hottest thing on Australian TV — but U.S. networks are afraid to put it on the air here!

The show, called Animal Domain, has been racking up high ratings ever since its debut 12 weeks ago. But its producers have been frustrated in their attempts to sell it in America.

"They've told us our show is too controversial for U.S. audiences," said producer Allen Langston of Melbourne, Australia. "They say they'd be put out of business if they aired even one episode."

But Australian audiences are tuning in by the millions to the show that features:

• A parrot that speaks with a lisp and likes to wear a red ascot.

• A gerbil that refuses to eat unless it has a attendant candelabra beside its food dish and soft music playing in the background.

• A monkey that wears a [illegible]

FLOWER-SNIFFING CHIMPS

• A lizard that grooms itself in front of a mirror and refuses to leave the house unless it's attired in a purple sequined sweater.

• Two chimps that clutch flower bouquets and romantically sniff them.

• A mink ferret found that wears flowery women's hats and sways her behind from side to side when he walks.

"It's a well-known fact that homosexuality naturally occurs in the animal kingdom but these pets picked up their kinky behavior from their gay owners," Langston said.

"We originally created Animal Domain to appeal to homosexuals but the show is very popular with heterosexuals, too. They think it's hilarious."

Langston said he couldn't understand why U.S. networks were so afraid of the show.

"It's all good fun," he said.

Maryland woman's shocking story!

I'VE BEEN HAUNTED BY A GHOST SINCE [illegible]!

By SUSAN JAMISON (Staff Writer)

In one of the eeriest ghost encounters of all time, trembling Ellen Myers spoke with the spirit of her husband's dead friend — and even tenderly held his hand for a heart-stopping moment.

Then, when Ellen closed her eyes for a second, the man disappeared. And, incredibly, Ellen found out hours later he had died in a tragic accident at the time she spoke with his ghost.

The chilling real-life story was revealed when Ellen Myers described her experience many years later to a romance magazine. Experts say that the Ellenor, the woman's meeting with the ghost is called a crisis apparition — something that happens when a loved one dies traumatically.

"That frightening visit from a ghost really did happen," Ellen said. "It was so eerie."

"Everybody is afraid of seeing a ghost and with good reason — it is terrifying."

The ghastly visit took place in April 1972, when newly married Ellen was just 19 years old and living in New York City with her husband Bill. She was pregnant with their first child and had decided to spend the morning in bed. After resting up for a few hours, Ellen decided she felt well enough to go visit her mother in New Jersey. She says the time was just 10 a.m. as she hopped in to go to the shower. Suddenly she realized that her husband's best buddy Mike Morris was sitting on the edge of her bed. "There he was, uninvited, and in our bedroom, no less," Ellen recalled. "What nerve! I was shocked that Mike would do something so rude and offensive — he was normally a very quiet young man. Then I became livid when I saw the mess he was making. He was dripping wet from head to toe. Water was just pouring off him — the covers were soaked." Ellen was about to scold Mike for his behavior when she saw that he looked tremendously sad. "I came to say goodbye," he said to her.

SHARED: Ellen Myers has been haunted by the ghost for the past seven decades.

He looked so unhappy that Ellen went to him and grabbed his hand.

But suddenly she was overcome by a wave of panic and closed her eyes. When she opened them, Mike was gone. Hours later, Ellen's husband returned home and told her Mike was dead.

"Mike Morris was in a boating accident today," Bill told her. "He drowned at 10 this morning."

Australian town has . . .

By RICK TRACY, Correspondent

MILES, Australia — Folks who live in this quaint little town call it heaven on earth because there is no crime, no AIDS, no drug problem and no unemployment. There are no school dropouts and no babies born out of wedlock.

There is no jail, no police department and no court system — because no one ever gets into trouble, divorces his spouse or does anything he can be jailed for.

And the reason this town of 13,100 residents is so trouble free will surprise you.

"We decided to do away with laws and put everyone on the honor system about 10 years ago," said Mayor Harry Hicks.

"And it has worked like a charm. People here care about [illegible]

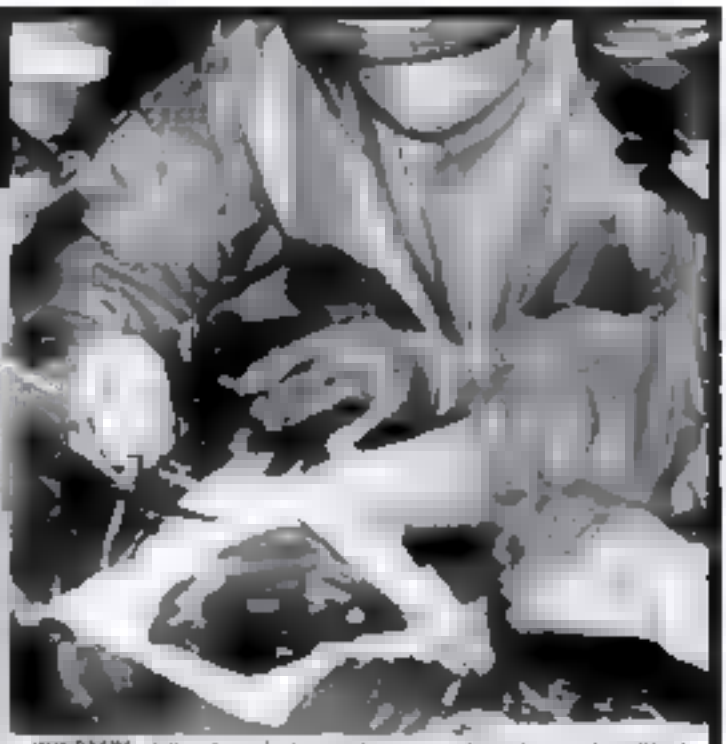
NURSE HIDES HUMAN LIVER IN HOSPITAL CAFETERIA



HUNDREDS of liver transplant operations are performed every day — illegal surgery in Asia or the Americas — and very few organs are dropped on the floor

A fumble-fingered nurse dropped a donated liver on the floor — then tried to cover up her mistake by putting the dirty organ in a freezer in the hospital cafeteria.

But here's the weird part: By the time anyone had found out what she'd done, the liver had been cooked up and served to patients and hospital visitors.

That's the shocking conclusion of an investigation into the disappearance of a human liver at a California hospital after last month. Hospital officials frantically searched for the missing organ, but to no avail.

HEARTBROKEN HOUND Penny guards the body of her dead pal Timmy the chimp

Dog keeps sad vigil at dead chimp's side!

By DEXTER SOMMER / Correspondent

In fact, the chimp is dead — and the dog that raised him from infancy is mourning the loss of the best little friend she ever had.

Returning a half hour later, she found 3 year old Timmy dead on her front lawn ... with Penny keeping a silent but determined vigil by his side.

An empty bottle of chlorine bleach lay a few feet away. A vet examiner later confirmed that the mischievous chimp had accidentally poisoned himself by chugging a full quart of the stuff, the heartbroken woman said.

"Timmy's mother died when giving birth and Penny took him under her wing," said Mrs. Roland, a former carnival worker and chimp trainer from Sydney, Australia.

"It was a true animal love story from the very beginning. Penny and Timmy were inseparable from the day they met.

"When Timmy fell asleep she managed to realize that it was time for him to venture out on his own a little and find out what the world was all about.

"I guess she let him wander away when I went to the store. When I got back home and saw them out on the lawn, I thought Timmy was sleeping and actually took a picture.

"About an hour or so later, I tried to wake him up. That's when I realized the awful truth. Timmy wasn't sleeping. Timmy was dead. And Penny was grieving her heart out."

Mrs. Roland buried the chimp in a tiny plot near her home as Penny watched.

"Penny visits there first thing in the morning and the last thing at night," said the woman. "She knows he's gone forever. But she wants to make sure he's all right."

BETRAYED: Dirk Delahunt had no idea that Marla, the woman he married, would turn out to be a Jezebel

Chicago couple on their wedding day!

By RANDY JEFFRIES / Correspondent

CHICAGO — When adulteress Marla Delahunt had a hot extramarital affair she hoped it would remain a secret. But her furious husband caught her in the act — and now he's telling the world about it!

"I'm doing all I can to make sure everyone knows just what a low-down lying snake my so-called wife is," says shoe salesman Dirk Delahunt.

"Before I'm through, when people hear the word 'adultery,' the name 'Marla' will jump into their minds."

Dirk has hired skywriters, scrawled graffiti on rest room walls and fences, and even posted a sign saying "Adulterous Wife" above the "For Sale" sign in front of his house.

"She moved into her own place right after I caught her, but I don't plan to let that house after what happened," said Dirk, who made his shocking discovery when he came home early from work one day and found his wife of three years in bed with her tennis instructor.

Dirk tearfully asked her how she could do such a thing. "Instead of saying anything, all she could do was beg me not to tell any of our friends or family how she'd been unfaithful," says Dirk. "She was more concerned about her damn image than she was about my feelings."

Then and there, Dirk made it his wife's mission to expose her as a cunning Jezebel.

"I hired a skywriter to write, 'Marla Delahunt's a tramp.' I handed out cards asking people to dial my number and when they called they heard a message on my answering machine that said, 'This is Dirk Delahunt. My wife Marla is an adulterous cheat.

Rescue 911!

Boy, 4, calls cops — because his mom spanked him

By DAVID BARTON
Correspondent

CHICAGO — Little Mike Delmonaco knew enough to dial 911 when he was in trouble.

The problem is, he was in trouble with his mom — and when cops rushed to his home, he was in even more trouble than before.

"I gave him a spank on the rear for telling a lie and he called the cops," said housewife Annie Delmonaco. "He told them someone was hitting him and he wanted them taken away. They were really concerned.

"The first I knew about it, the police showed up at my door. They asked to see Mike to make sure he was all right. I was so embarrassed I nearly sank through the floor."

Mischievous Mike, 4, learned to use the telephone earlier this year after his diabetic grandmom moved into the family home. As he thought the little boy should know how to call the help of his grandmother got ill while he was alone with her. Clever Mike also memorized his address and telephone number so he could tell folks where he lived.

So when his mom punished him one week ago, little Mike knew just how to get back at her.

The tyke got angry stealing Popsicles from the freezer — and then lied and told his mom he didn't do it. Angry Annie dusted his bottom and Mike decided to call on her.

"He dialed 911 and told the operator someone had hit him and he needed protection," Annie said. "I didn't know he'd done anything until the police came. When I found out what had happened I had to sit down and talk to him. He was really [illegible] when he did Clarence and I explained how to call us.

Daredevil squirrel sucked down drainpipe!

By LILA SCHVANDT | Correspondent

PARIS — Stunt squirrel Gerard Henrique is missing and presumed dead after a water-skiing tragedy in which he was crossing a lake during a performance — and was sucked down a drainpipe!

Officials here say thousands of shocked witnesses saw the fatal accident, in which the gray squirrel suddenly disappeared under the chilly waters of Lake Bromeux in the middle of his act on February 3.

"The lake is a small man-made reservoir used to supplement the city water supply and there are a number of large intake pipes situated throughout it," explained Justin Prunot, head of the emergency rescue crew which spent three days searching without success for the daredevil rodent's corpse. "The missing performer apparently passed by an area where there was sufficient suction to drag him under.

"We have not yet found the body but we will continue our search. Gerard Henrique is one of the world's most famous performers and we do not intend to leave him to the city water system."

Henrique was acclaimed as the greatest stunt squirrel of all time and had entertained millions of people throughout Europe.

He began his career only three years ago, following in the steps of his father Herrule, who was also killed in a water-skiing accident.

Witnesses to the squirrel's tragic last moments say Henrique was speeding across Lake Bromeux when he disappeared from view. Bertrand de Rotonde, the squirrel's manager, said special memorial services would be held for Henrique, who was also a daredevil diver, snow skier, parachutist and hang glide enthusiast. The seven-inch-tall one-member band also set a 37.4 mile-per-hour world water-ski speed record for small animals.

"He had guts," de Rotonde said. "He was the greatest stunt squirrel the world has ever seen and he will be sorely missed."

Evil mom plays loud music while son is beaten with wire brush, say cops

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. — A teenage boy was stripped naked and beaten with a baseball bat, a wire brush and a shovel by three family friends, cops say — while his mom played music to cover up his screams!

"They suspected the boy had stolen $8,000 from his mother's boyfriend. They tried to make him tell them where the money was by beating him," said a police detective.

The cash apparently was taken from the pants pocket of Hugh Taylor, boyfriend of the teen's mother, Marie Szadurski, 39. Taylor had dropped his pants over a chair while he slept. Police said the boy and was dragged to the basement of his home. He was stripped naked, hanged by his hands from a pipe and beaten for an hour.

"The boy told us the three adults took turns beating him with a bat, a shovel and a heavy wire brush," the detective

COW MANURE SNIFFING ACROSS U.S.!

By ROBERT TYSON /Correspondent

Cow manure sniffing has reached epidemic proportions among teens in the United States — and thousands of addicted youngsters are showing symptoms of serious brain damage because of it!

The dangerous pastime originated in Malaysia in 1992 among drug addicts who couldn't afford cocaine or heroin.

They discovered they could get high by plopping a bowl over a fresh, steaming pile of cow manure, sticking straws through holes in the bottom of the bowl — and sucking the methane gas through the straws.

The bizarre craze quickly spread to Europe and the United States — and is now so common in this country that experts fear it could undermine the health of an entire generation.

"This manure-sniffing business is already out of control," said Atlanta physician Dr. John Talberson. "Young men and women are suffering extended periods of dizziness and blurred vision, and some are even showing signs of permanent brain damage.

"But even when these young people are made to understand what they're doing to themselves, they still head back to the pastures time and time again. It's obviously very addictive stuff."

Dr. Talberson said his research reveals that in some Southern communities, nearly 70 percent of high school students have experimented with manure-sniffing.

"The students I have spoken to say the high they get off manure-sniffing is better than anything they've ever experienced before," Dr. Talberson said. "And of course, it's a lot less expensive — and in some places, a lot more accessible — than alcohol and other drugs."

Dr. Talberson said he has developed a new blood test to determine whether a patient has been sniffing manure.

"Since the activity is so addicting, the only way to beat it is to catch it early," he said.

"I'd advise all schools in this country to institute student methane-testing programs — so we can stop this latest madness now!"

'Thousand of American teens facing permanent brain damage,' says doctor!

How to tell if your child is snorting bull crap!

In order to determine whether your child has been engaged in manure sniffing, Dr. Jim Talberson said parents should look for these telltale signs:

■ Dumb, harmony looks on children's faces. "The high that children get from the methane gas generally lasts for quite a while," Dr. Talberson said. "And even when the high is wearing off the sniffer generally will show the effects for several hours."

■ The child keeps several straws and hoods in his room or car. "This is the equipment every sniffer needs," he said. "If the hoods have holes in the bottom of them, it's a sure bet the child is a sniffer."

■ "This would indicate he has been spending a lot of time in fields and cow pastures."

■ Forgetfulness and unusually short attention spans. "This would tell you the child has been engaging in the sniffing for a long period of time," Dr. Talberson said. "He may already have a serious problem."

Dr. Talberson also said parents should trust their instincts. "If your child smells like manure, he aware that he is probably spending time sniffing it. And don't be afraid to

DANGRIK, Thailand — An outraged Buddhist monk chopped an abbot's head off after catching the monk in bed with a nun — then told cops he was imitating an execution he'd heard about on TV.

Phra Sayan Durkyalak said he committed the grisly murder after watching a judge order that criminals have their heads chopped off on a popular TV series. He also told cops he wanted to display the abbot's head at a public park as a warning to monks who considered breaking their vows of chastity.

He is awaiting trial.

"Paperwork disease" is spreading through American business and government. An incredible 30 to 50 percent of all work hours put in by white-collar employees are wasted on paper shuffling, says expert Dianna Booher.

Here are some more mind-boggling facts about paperwork and how it's strangling us:

- Clerks spend 60 percent of their time checking, filing and retrieving information.
- For each dollar spent printing forms, it costs up to $20 to distribute, copy, process and destroy them.
- Largely because white-collar workers push more and more paper — while taking less and less action — white-collar productivity has increased just 4 percent over the past 20 years. That compares to a whopping 90 percent productivity increase among blue-collar workers during the same period.
- Americans create a mind-boggling 20 billion original documents annually — and all that paperwork costs more than $100 billion a year.
- Of the documents we keep, an amazing 75 to 95 percent are never referred to again.
- We maintain 18,000 pages of documents for each white-collar employee. And this file increases 4,000 pages per year for each employee.
- Even salespeople get buried in paperwork. One study found that salespeople spend only 20 percent of their time prospecting and selling — and the rest of it shuffling papers.

It's true that everybody is entitled to the pursuit of happiness, but it looks like
